This is a marvelous book with no words that allows kids to make up their own narrative. Just make dsounds, or let the kids read it to you. It's perfet for 23 year olds. And older. Five stars, without a doubt.

This book has wonderful, beautiful pictures, but no story!! There are words on the first page and the last page and no other words at all in the middle. Children want to hear a story, not just look at pictures trying to tell a story. I would love to have a clever author fill in the great pictures for the rest of the book.

The book itself is fine. The way it was shipped is my problem. There was nothing to stabilize the book inside its packaging and since it is a paperback it was folded by the post office. Now the book has a big crease down the center of it.

On his way to a tuba lesson, a young boy enchants a forest full of animals with his music, getting caught up in a grand adventure of note-making and mischief.
